Type of Page	Details
Splash Page	Has nothing to do with anything other than the affiliate offer. Can be used within the content of your site.
Squeeze Page	To influence people to put their names in their email in the box This is for list building, generate an email list. The simpler, the better. Your headline needs to capture why the visitor is there. Pay for your traffic as you build your list.
Full Funnel	Similar to a squeeze page where you are actually setting up a flow as to what you want them to buy. Use WordPress. Opt in, buy things, lead to other things. If they opt in, but don't buy, you follow up, if they do, they are put on a buyers list. Focused on conversion in every step. You have to look at and follow on what you want your visitors to do. Advanced version of a squeeze page.
Review Page	Reviews various products. Marcus used for credit card offers. You can use this to get traffic. Warning: There are companies that teach this unethically. You want to make sure you do honest reviews, focus on the product at hand and then sell the product at hand. Viable method, but only if you do it right. Almost make sure you have tried the product you are reviewing and disclaimer that you are an affiliate.
Comparison Page	Viable method, but only if you do it right. Almost make sure you have tried the product you are reviewing and disclaimer that you are an affiliate. You could do this with any product. Focus on your traffic method, make sure people are looking for these products. Some people line them in categories or use the 5-star method.
Steps Page	You use steps to get people what they are looking for. This is all about getting the results and giving them the steps on how to do it. You can do this for literally anything. This could then lead them into affiliate offers. Make it simple. Make headlines bold and clickable. Find the right traffic method.

Straight Arbitrage	Arbitrage: This is where you will go through and the idea is to make money off the click without building anything else. They are finding a gap in the marketplace and get them to click on an ad for anything and instantly increase the value of the click. Very inexpensive traffic. You collect as many people as you do to get the affiliate offer. Far too many people are giving the valuable stuff from it. You want people to see the offer first. You have to focus on the sales, not the content if you want to make money.
Interactive Arbitrage	Similar to above – where you go through and get information based on what people want. (Examples: Drop down box, Links, Zip Code Boxes)
Advertorial	These were so successful as magazine advertisements. It's an ad, it would be like a report. It's teaching people something, but with the purpose to buy items. Very easy to do if you focus on your market and know what they want. You can also use a story as it sells very well. You could use a long or short form. If you have a blog with a lot of content, you should use this method.
Straight Sales	This is where your traffic is sent directly to a sales page. Focus on why the visitor is there and lead them into why you are offering the product to get sales.
Informational	This is similar to an advertorial, but Informational is designed to give people a lot of options. Everyone loves tips and you either write the content or outsource it.

Recommendation	You are recommending something. You can go through and determine what people want. This whole content is designed to give them the sales pitch and focus on the right keywords. A lot of people miss this because they think just putting content on the site is enough.
Download	Multiple 7 figure earning webpage. It promotes download offers. The content is downloading. You can generate (thousands of downloads a day using this method. The idea is to highlight it. All your goal is to download the 'thing.'
Resource Page	Looking for cheap traffic. You could get a resource page to use for anything along with using reports. The key to make this all work is to direct your visitors to where you want them to go. You need to guide them to what you want them to do.
Slide Model	Putting your content into various slides. As you click next, it changes the visual and along with the content.

Solve The Bullying Problem Once And For All... Click Here Now!

Dear Concerned Parent,

Congratulations... you care enough to look for a way to help your child thru a very painful time.

Being over twelve inches shorter than the other guys in school was difficult and very painful. I was in a world of hurt and loneliness where i thought i had to be someone i wasn't to make people like me. Being beat up and teased often took its toll when i finally decided to ditch my last 2 years of high school and wave goodbye to my dreams of going to a good college..

No matter how old your kids are... Its never to late to stop the bullying and teach your kid that they are worth more than that life. They can do what they want....

Maybe you have tried other remedies:

- Ignoring
- Saying Clever Things
- Telling The Teachers....

Don't worry... they never worked for me either.. I remember when some random kid named jeff who i had never even met before kicked me in the groin as hard as he could... i was in pain for at least an hour almost too the point of throwing up... i told the principal and she laughed at me... the scars in my heart still last today.

#11 – Recommendation

have to be all that great, the sales letter was non-existent... yet this budget stand is packed with money waving customers.

Here's the deal... your thirsty crowd lies in your keyword list on the internet.

If you get that right... you win the game.

Take this for example...

873 people each day search for "buy fireworks online"

My guess is that they want to buy some cool explosives to set off on their front porch. This is an example of an easy to use, ready made, niche market. You can make a lame site and make decent money because people want to buy.

I did this in 2003 with the word "gas powered scooters for cheap" selling over $16,000 a month in scooters off of 210 searches per day really showed me the power of using keywords to target a thirsty audience.

Since then i have used this system to consistently find the right words to generate highly targeted traffic and generate over $1.7 million in advertising revenue.

This is the most important part of your online marketing presence.
